HIS LAST BAT.

Andrew Hillerich, member of the firm of J. P. Hillerich & Sons, manufacturers of baseball bats and widely known among the baseball players of the country, died Wednesday morning at his home, 1321 East Washington street. His death was caused by anemia after an illness of eight months. He was seventy years old. Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Mary Ann Hillerich; his brother, J. P. Hillerich, and four sons, William, Joseph, Andrew and Carl Hillerich, and six daughters, Mrs. George Feldman, Mrs. Frank Bauer, Misses Adelaide, Ann and Agnes Hillerich, and Sister Mary Carotta, of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, at Lafayette, Ind. The mass was sung by the Rev. Robert Cronin, the pastor, assisted by Rev. John Kallisher, of St. Columba's, as deacon, and Rev. Francis O'Connor, of St. Cecilia's, as sub-deacon. Under the direction of the Sisters the music was rendered by a choir made up of school children.

Record of the Most Important of the Recent Events Culled
From Exchanges.

Both parties in Enniskillen are preparing for a desperate fight in January for the control of the Urban Council.

Two customs officers have arrived in Newry from England to assist the Newry staff in preventing the importation of arms into the district.

The Congested Districts Board has purchased the Wells-Sanford estate, Ballinlough, which had been for some time the subject of negotiation.

The Ennisceorthy Guardians have unanimously adopted a resolution expressing approval of the Irish Volunteer movement, and pledging it every support.

Michael Gantly, aged eighteen, Roscrea, has installed in his house a wireless telegraph station. He has received signals from ships 800 miles west of Fastnet.

John Joyce, landowner and farmer, of Creggan, County Galway, whose death in his eightieth year recently took place, was the recognized Chief of his clan.

The Ardee Town Commissioners have approved a scheme for the proposed electric lighting of the town, which it was stated was favored by all the leading ratepayers.

At a recent meeting of Athy Urban Council it was unanimously decided to proceed with a second housing scheme to provide thirty-six cottages for the working classes.

John Byrne, retired merchant and farmer, fell from his seat while engaged at prayer in St. Peter's church, Athlone, and died after receiving the last sacraments in the vestry.

As a mark of their esteem the parishioners of the Rev. Chancellor McHale, of Kilglass, presented him at his new parochial house with a check value for a substantial amount.

An accident of a serious nature happened to a miller named Patrick Reilly, residing at Drumcar, near Dunleer. One of his arms was almost torn away by being caught in the cogs of a wheel.

The Limerick division of the Irish National Foresters have pledged themselves to co-operate with other National societies to give the city of the violated treaty its proper place in the Volunteer movement.

John McCarthy, of Skibbereen, has died as a result of injuries sustained by his being knocked down by horses that he was driving at Ballydeobol bolting and upsetting the car to which they were attached.

The body of John Nolan, a farmer, aged fifty, residing near the River Drish, about a mile from Thurles, was discovered in a gullet near the Drish bridge. He had been missing since the early part of November.

Thomas Flynn, of Derryceason, was at the Ulster Assizes sentenced to seven years' penal servitude for the manslaughter of John Prior, of Arva. Prior was an ex-London policeman. Flynn's plea was self-defence.

While training a young horse at Carnan, near Stewartstown, a farmer named James Duffy, seventy-one years of age, was kicked by the rearing animal in the head and succumbed to his injuries soon afterward.

A remarkable instance of longevity is reported from Clogher, where Michael Shevlin and his wife are in good health at the great age of 104 and 103 years respectively. They were married eighty-three years ago.

As the result of a deputation from the Cork O'Growney Branch Gaelic League, the Cork County Council has unanimously passed a resolution deciding to keep Ballinacanga Castle in a state of preservation.

A handsome sum has already been raised for the erection of a suitable memorial at Cahirciveen to the memory of the late Canon O'Riordan, of that parish. The project also includes the placing of a mural tablet over the grave of the late Canon Brosnan.

The death occurred suddenly of Rev. James O'Shea, of Cratloe. He had not been in robust health of late, and had intended traveling to Limerick by the early train. He was taken ill at the railway station, and despite every effort to revive him he did not rally. He was attended by Rev. Father White, of Sixmilecross, who was traveling by the same train.

SEIMER SUCCEEDS MATRE.

Anthony Matre, for over ten years Supreme Secretary of the Catholic Knights of America, has resigned his office in order to give his entire time to the services of the American Federation of Catholic Societies, leaving a record that reflects the greatest credit. Supreme President Gaudin has named as his successor Henry Seimer, of St. Louis, who has been an indefatigable and intelligent worker for the Catholic Knights of America. His familiarity with the work of the order fits him well for the position of Supreme Secretary, and no one doubts that he will make good in his new position. The annual reports are now being compiled and show that the order is steadily increasing in membership.

NOVELTY EUCHRE AND LOTTO.

Elaborate plans are under way for the midwinter novelty euchre and lotto festival in St. Vincent de Paul's new school hall, which will be held under the auspices of the Central Committee, C. K. of A., on Wednesday night, January 23. President Ben Kruse and the members of the various committees are working earnestly to make the affair a success. Many valuable gifts and donations have already been made, and indications are that the coming euchre and lotto will surpass any former attempt. As is well known, the affairs given by the Catholic Knights have always been pleasant and enjoyable, and this one is regarded with interest.
